

Al Stewart Cancels

Al Stewart, scheduled to be in concert at the PSUC Fieldhouse on Friday, April 22, cancelled the date because of "exhaustion". Neil Jacobsen, Concert Committee Chairman said, "He gave no other reason for the cancellation."

Jacobsen said, "We hope the money that was set aside for this concert will be carried over for next semester's concert budget. I think the SA will recognize the problems we've had and let the money be used for another concert." Jacobsen said that it would be extremely difficult to get another major act for this semester, in light of the fact that there are only a few weeks left. He said, "It's possible that we could get something else, but I doubt it."

Jacobsen pointed out that problems the committee has had over the semester with cancellations and other bands just refusing the committee's bids. Jeff Beck was one act that accepted (at $12,000) twice, and shortly after each acceptance cancelled.

Other bands that were "up in the air" and then fell through were: The Beach Boys (at 25,000); Fleetwood Mac ($25,000); The Eagles (30,000); Boz Scaggs (15,000); Dave Mason ($1,000); Genesis (12,500); Santana (8,500); Boston (15,000). Jacobsen emphasized his feelings on how hard the committee has worked this semester. He said, "I just want everybody to realize that it's not our fault."

Refunds for all those who bought tickets in advance for this concert are now available at the College Center Desk.
