

TALKING HEADS . . .

September 30, 1983

On Friday, Sept. 30, David Byrne took the PSUC Fieldhouse stage to perform a solo version of "Psycho Killer." This was just the start of an incredible concert by Talking Heads. One by one, the other band members joined Byrne on stage. They went on to play a twenty-one song set which included some of their older songs like "Cities", "Love Goes" and "Building on Fire", as well as new songs like "Making Flippy Floppy" and the top ten hit, "Burning Down the House" from their album, Speaking in Tongues. The crowd of more than 3800 people danced and cheered throughout the concert, which was brought to Plattsburgh by David Brickman and the Concert Committee.